To Whom It May Concern,

I am pleased to provide this reference for Konrad Sroka, who worked with me remotely on the development of my platform, Mirror Mirror.

Konrad was responsible for building the website from the ground up using WordPress. This included the full website architecture, hosting setup, plugin integration, email automation flows, notification handling systems, and ongoing technical problem solving throughout the project lifecycle.

One of the more complex components of the project involved integrating and customising the GeoDirectory plugin to support practitioner listings, search functionality, and user experience requirements specific to our business model. Konrad approached these challenges with a high level of technical capability and initiative. He consistently looked for smarter and more scalable ways to improve functionality rather than simply completing tasks at face value.

What stood out most was his ability to combine technical execution with strategic thinking. He regularly contributed valuable ideas on user flow, automation, backend structure, and ways to improve the overall usability of the platform. His input extended well beyond development alone.

Despite working remotely, Konrad was reliable, responsive, and easy to communicate with throughout the project. He managed deadlines well, kept me informed of progress, and handled feedback professionally. He was also proactive in troubleshooting issues independently and liaising with third-party providers when required.

From both a technical and professional perspective, I would confidently recommend Konrad for software engineering or web development roles within high-performing technology companies. I believe he would be a valuable asset to any team seeking someone who can work autonomously, communicate effectively, and contribute innovative thinking alongside strong technical skills.

Please feel free to contact me should you require any further information.

Kind regards,

Jacinta King
